BIO

David and Diane Mariant

"Since first diagnosed with bipolar disorder and after my own brush with death, I have become a passionate student of bipolar disorder. If you are interested in the truth about bipolar disorder and how to live with its hidden danger, then read our unique first hand account."

"My wife Diane and I want to equip bipolar sufferers and their families with awareness and tools to help them survive, overcome the illness, and thrive. Reading this book could save your life---that is why we have written this book."

David Mariant

David Mariant's experience includes motivational speaking, teaching and group leadership. His skills acquired through his career, volunteer services and family life have proven valuable as he now dedicates his energies to both his family and the pursuit of helping others to overcome bipolar disorder.

David, along with his wife Diane, have been guest speakers, giving talks at numerous locations around the country, to people with bipolar issues. Special attention is given for their involvement with DBSA - Depression and Bipolar Support Alliance, in which David, along with his wife Diane, were honored "Keynote Speakers" and workshop leaders at DBSA's California convention workshop.

Dave has also dedicated considerable time to counsel many bipolar sufferers through bipolar online communities and has graciously donated hundreds of free books to people in crisis who could not otherwise afford to purchase one. The praises and gratitude he has been receiving for his work, are too many to mention. He has become recognized by health care professionals and bipolar sufferers alike, as one of the most knowledgeable and experienced people, for dealing with bipolar disorder.
